NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The reason of yesterday's smashing break in securities ted on the Street to be a masterly was made public this morning by the passing of Edwin Hawley, a constructive operator, practically controlling the Chesapeake and Ohio, the "Katy," and other roads, and interested industrially, as well. That Mr. Hawley has been ill was a matter of public knowledge. Mr. Hawley's loans on the Street were heavy, and they were generally liquidated yesterday, this being the cause of the slump.

Today's market was nervous, entirely in the hands of the floor traders, and

Today's market was nervous, entirely in the hands of the floor traders, and inclined to move easier toward lower prices than toward better figures, although the average was 14 better than the final figures of yesterday.

There was much of encouragement in the earnings of two great systems for the earnings of two great systems for December that in a way ought to offset the Harriman showings. Pennsylvania came across with an increase in both gross and net revenues. The lines west of Pittsburgh showed a net increase of $259,000; lines east had a gain in net operating revenue of $1,000,872. From the Chesapeake and Ohio system came a net operating revenue gain fer December of $119,325, and a gross of $151,351. These are straws and ought to be a matter of encouragement to holders of securities.

The vaciliating trend finally worked itself into a decided weakness. The gains were wiped out and the bears, sure of their position, were decidedly aggressive again. They jumped on Steel and they bucked Union Pacific and St. Paul and also Copper with persistency.

The result was slow and intensely nervous.

The report brings out the fact that present express company dividends are in large part being earned by the huge investments of express companies in profitable railroad securities. These securities were bought with suspiness piled up in the palmy days of big express profits. The report does not attempt to draw
